WILLIAM H. TIMBERS
 PRINCIPAL

BRUCE STRYHAS
 ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

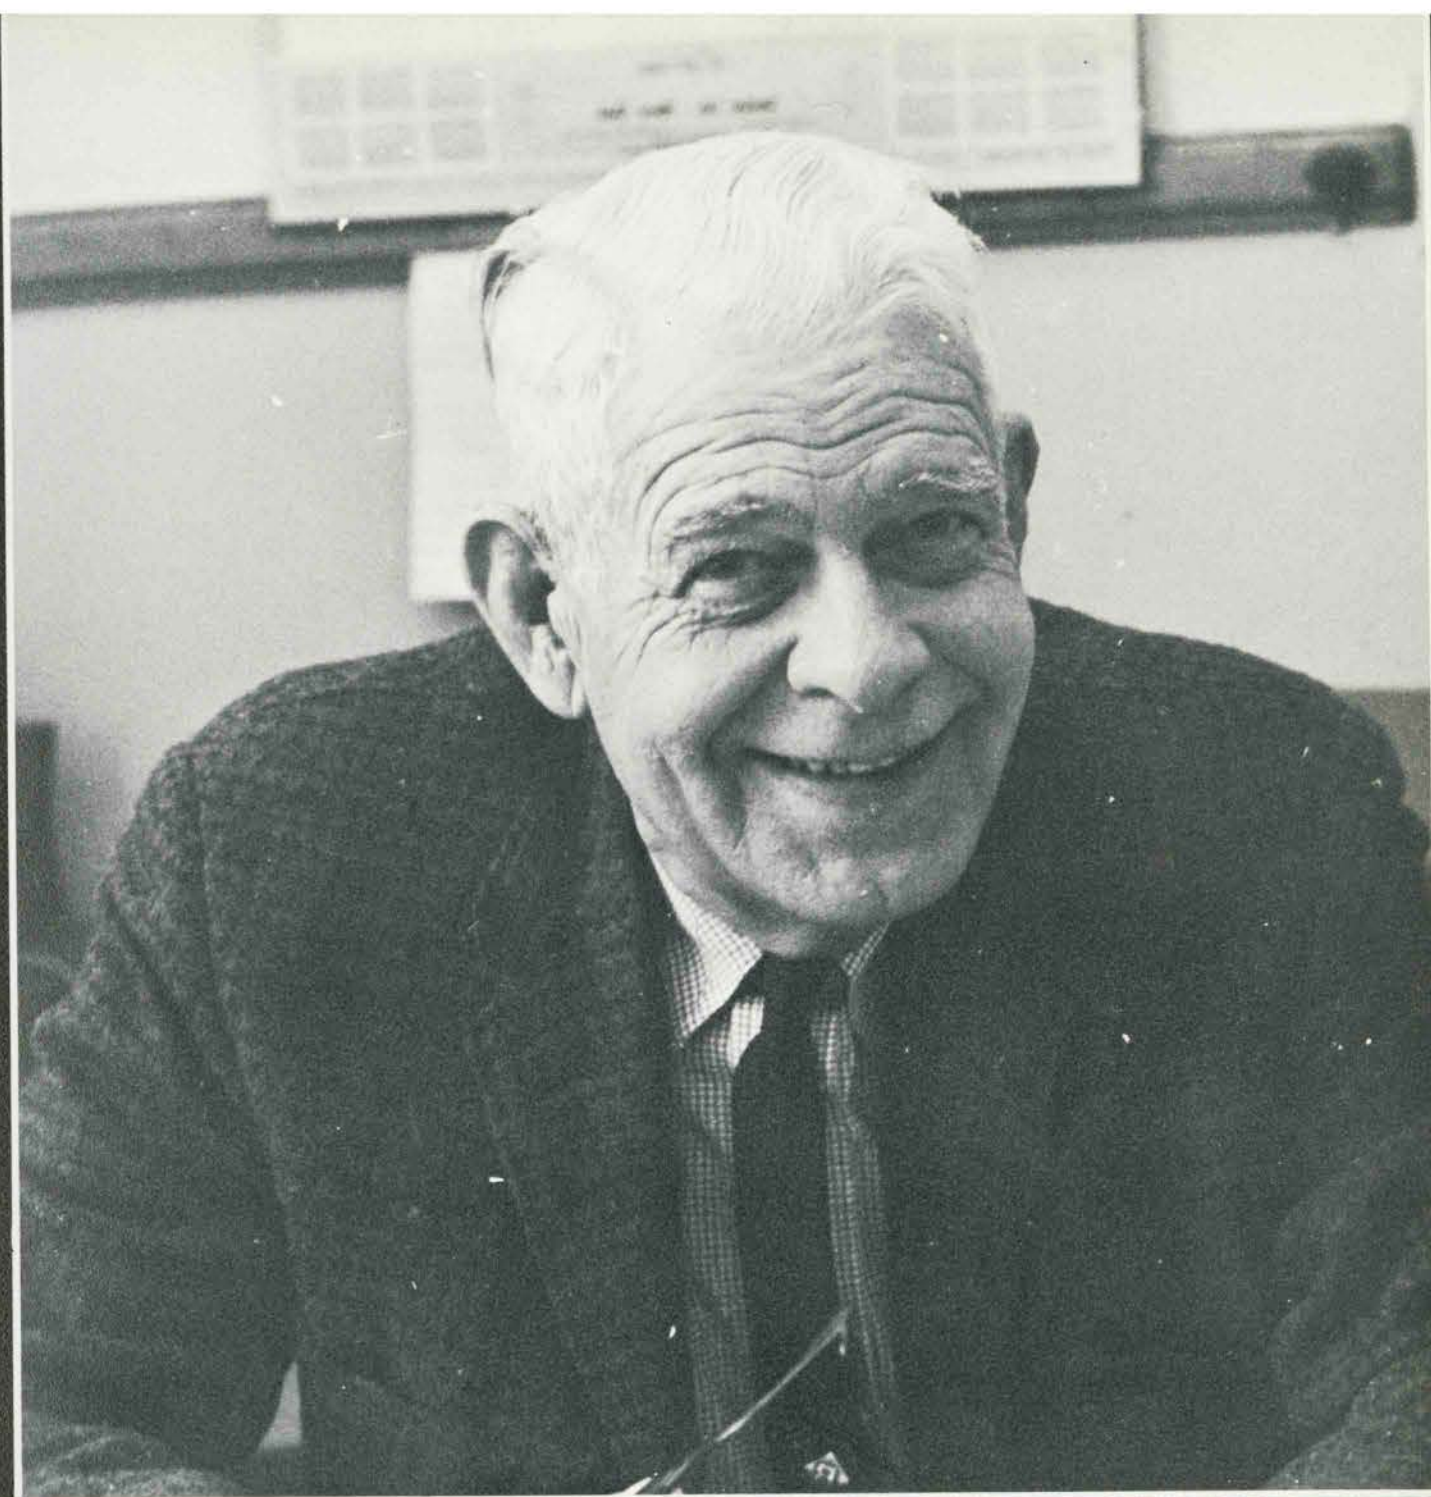

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1972.

Throughout your years at Rutland Senior High School you have been exposed to many educational experiences. Many of you have participated in a variety of co-curricular and extra curricular activities. From these things, I am sure you have gained a great deal.

Following your Commencement, each of you will enter different fields of endeavor. It is my fondest hope that each one of you will realize success and happiness in your chosen career.

Sincerely,

 William H. Timbers
 Principal

For eighteen years, Maynard C. Robinson, served the youth of Rutland as Principal of Rutland High School. The members of the Class of 1972 knew him as their Principal for the first two years of their Senior High School experience. We knew him as a very understanding individual who displayed a great deal of interest in the welfare of the students with whom he came in contact.

We sincerely hope he has many years of enjoyment in his retirement.

Yes sir, this was the year of photogenic teachers. Caught in their various moods they show one trait similar to all of the students . . . they are human and also learning every year about us. Our bull excuses, exams, grades, and usually humorous situations.

The High School is a learning institution of many degrees. It is marked with fluctuations both high and low, common to all. The school teaches you to stand on your own for the times ahead. The student learns to survive in what he will eventually face — people. During this trial period he experiences life — something he will try to do with success in the future.

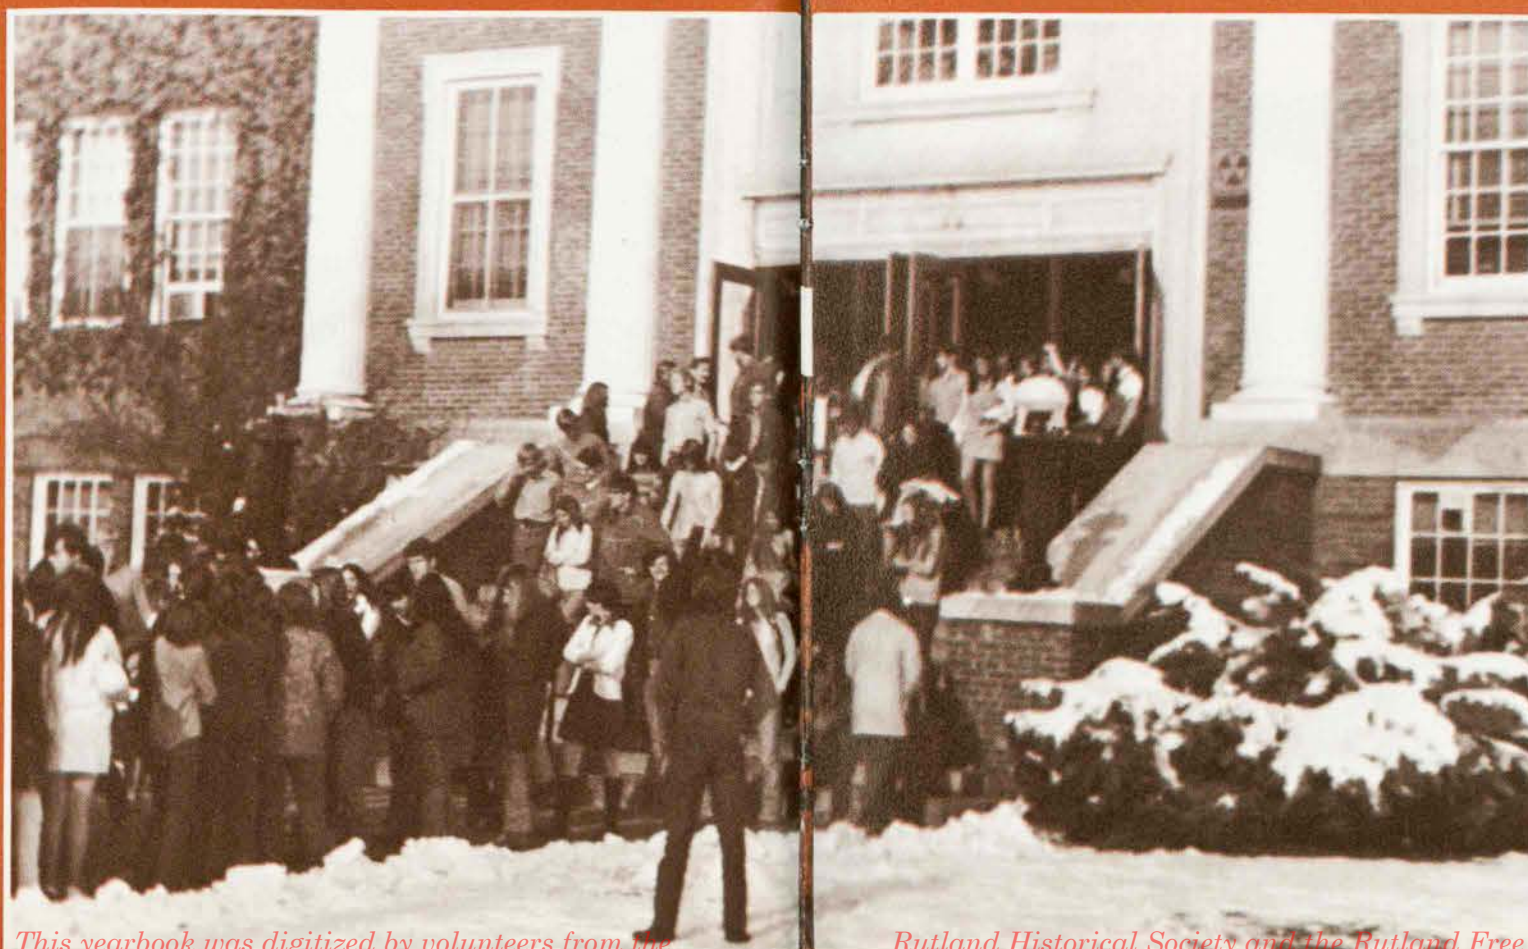

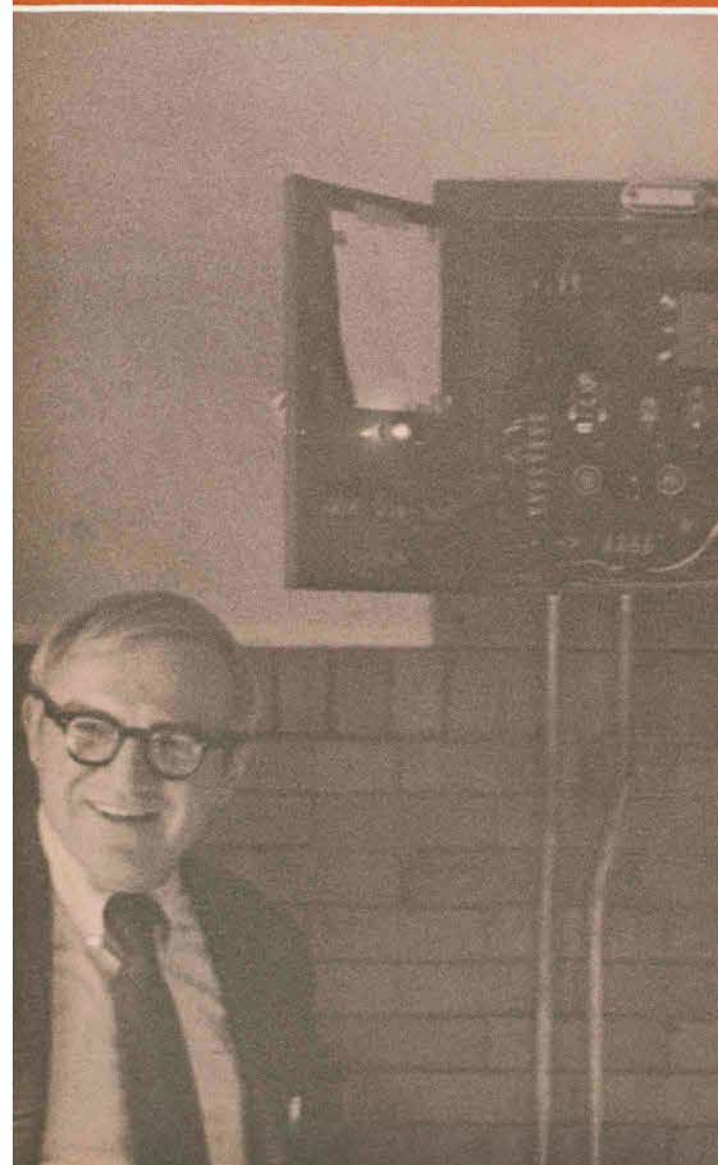

... that time at the beginning of each academic year where the friendships are renewed, where everyone “checks-out” everyone else and preparation of the new semester begins.

Now those monthly fire drills . . . as students pour out of classrooms and study halls like being dismissed halfway through the period. Waking up in the middle of a movie to leave a warm room to face the cold outside . . .

"The time of the fire drill was 1 minute, 42 seconds today, that's not too bad." Of course it's not too good, but then again the school wasn't on fire, right?

AN EXPERIMENT TO DISCOVER THE EFFECTS OF CROWDING WAS PERFORMED ON A GROUP OF RATS. IT WAS REVEALED THAT A BREAKDOWN IN NORMATIVE BEHAVIAR OCCURRED . . . AN INCREASE IN ENROLLMENT WITHOUT INCREASING THE FACILITIES WILL RESULT IN CROWDING. THE SIMILARITY OF STUDENTS AND RATS IS DEBATABLE BUT HAVING CROWDED CONDITIONS IS . . .

Rutland High School, being in a period of change and some confusion, produced a somewhat changing and confused Student Council. This year brought up many questions as to the purpose and powers of the Student Council.

Despite the non-regulated attendance and meetings, the Council was able to successfully produce a talent show for the benefit of the American Field Service in February.

All in all, it was a mediocre year for President, Sally Mac and her constituents, but it is hoped that from this experience the underclassmen will learn and improve upon their predecessors.

Last year the Rutland Chapter of the National Honor Society inducted twelve members to continue the integrity of our most formal organization. The year consisted mainly of technical meetings and preparations for the highlight of the year. The major project was amidst the Yuletide Season when the Society threw a party at Brandon Training School, where J. H. Higgins made his debut as jolly St. Nick. In addition, a Christmas carol sing was sponsored at a local nursing home.

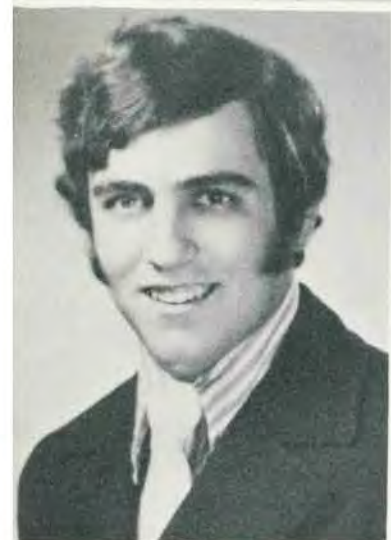

The Key Club has now definitely proved beyond a shadow of doubt that formal meetings were not the only way to organize a group of young men. Their activities were many and varied; "Cream the Green Machine" was very popular among the hammer-wielding demolitionists in the High School. Among the constructive projects was the Key Club behind Jim Rundell, in his quest for Alderman. In the school itself the by-now famous Key Club purchased a laser for the Science Department. Key Club's popularity gained when it sponsored the Atlantis concert in the still wet walls of the auditorium. To round out the year the Key Club sponsored the concession stand and ushered at the basketball games.

The '72 Talisman — what's to say except that you are now evaluating the product of a full year of work. We tried to give an accurate portrait of the integrated and separated lives and life styles of our schoolmates.

In addition, the section editors are: News Editor, Pat Floyd; Educational Editor, Marjorie Stern; Feature Editor, Cynthia Pratico; Sports Editor, Jim McMahon; Exchange Editor, Rebecca Barrows; and Business Manager, Michele D'Amico.

This year's staff will try to get as many students as possible involved in the creation of the best year of Red & Whites ever. They have a full year planned with many new and original ideas.

MUSIC

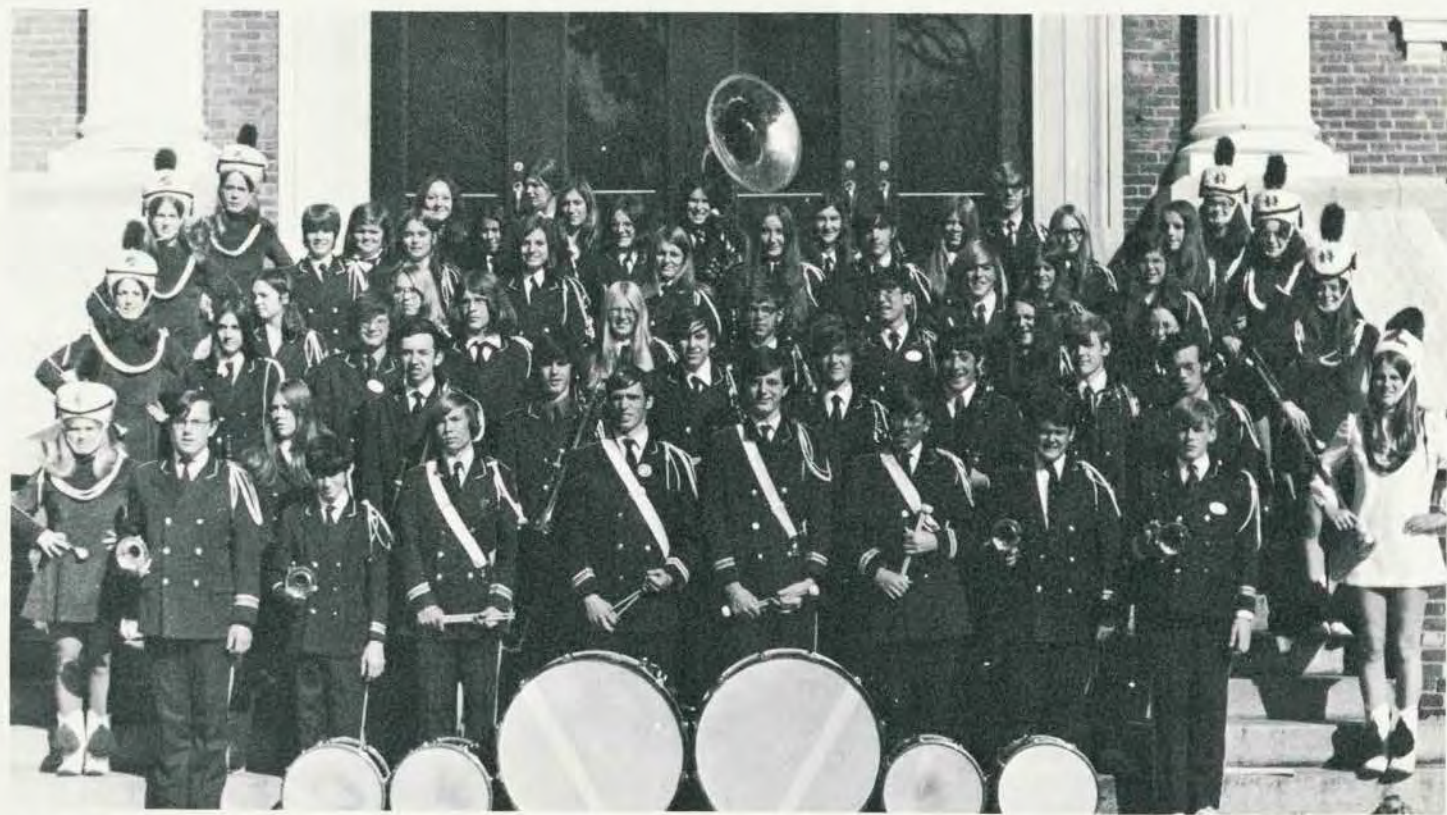

CHORUS

The Rutland High School chorus made considerable gains in 1971-72 — not in total numbers, but in male participation. Almost one-third of the group are boys, adding much to the over-all quality of sound, and making it possible for the first time in several years to sing music of greater difficulty. This trend, one which we hope continues, has made the RHS chorus one of the best among area schools.

The main project of the year was the establishment of a $1000.00 scholarship fund through several money-raising events. The scholarships are to be given to two seniors going on to major in music in college.

Chamber Singers and Madrigal Singers are select groups chosen by audition which perform music of greater scope and difficulty.

MUSIC

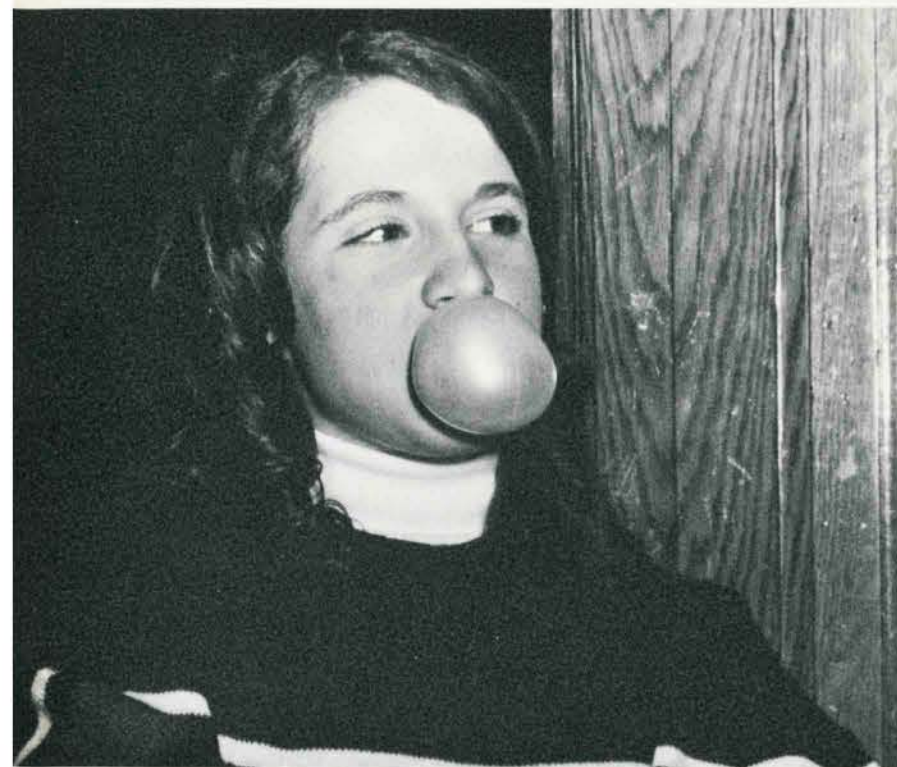

Music was expressed at Rutland High School by the band. This group under the direction of Mr. Robert Miller, played during football games and parades, as well as during their own concerts. The highlight of the year was the New England Music Festival held in Rutland.

DANCE BAND: has provided entertainment the past couple years for RHS students and the public. The big production this year was Lil' Abner . . .

The Raiders invaded the Mountie's County,
12 Raiders, 12 Mounties all hunting for bounty.
Another confrontation between Red and Green
Even before the game fans started to scream.

When the men took the floor
They were tingled by the crowd's roar
The strength of their schools was being tested
And in the game MSJ was bested.

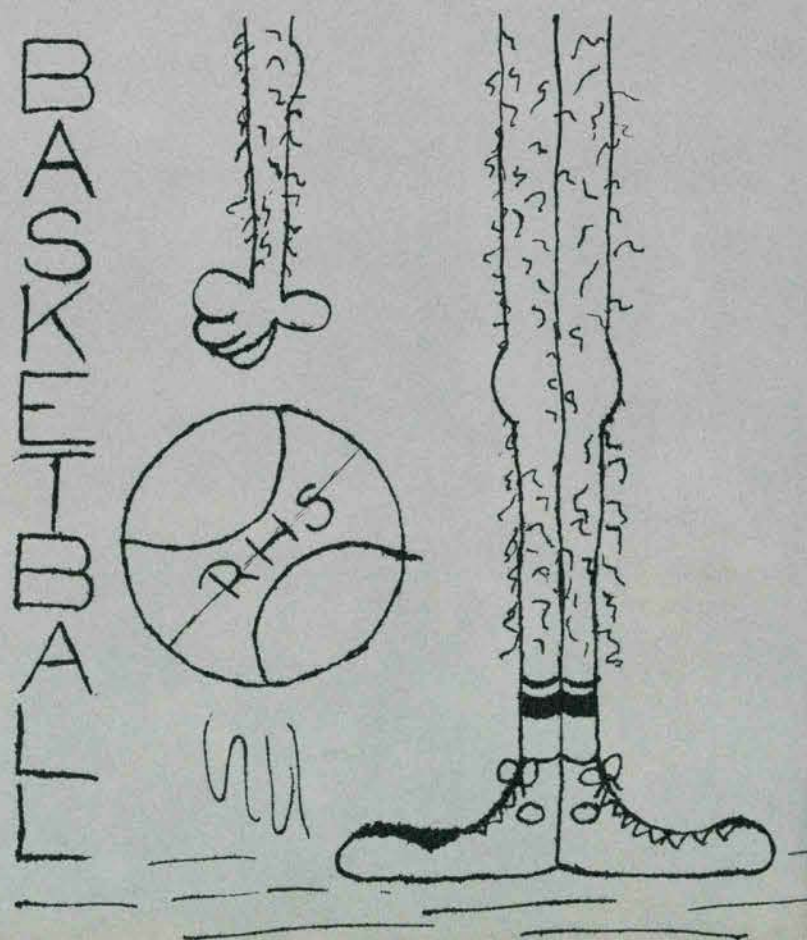

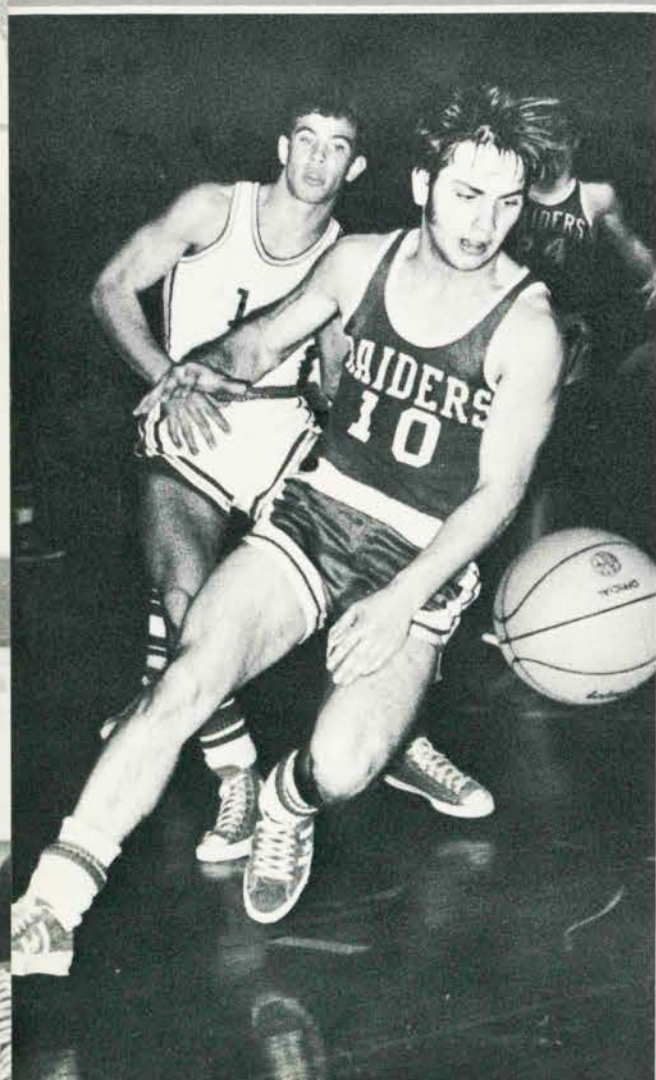

The game wasn't a cinch
We found ourselves in many a pinch
During this game that was mentally tough
Down to earth and physically rough.

Ocky, Dave, Gary, Eric, Terry, and Stanley, too
Fought on the court 'til they were black & blue
Under the boards and on the floor
They sweated from the core.

On the sidelines there was never silence
And a couple of times a little violence.
Especially when Terry got called for a "Big T"
Then Cal almost went 1 on 1 with the referee.

Soon came the final buzzer
Redmen were hugging each other.
42 — 39 was the final score
As proud Raiders went parading out the door.

In These Times Of Change Its Good . . .

To Realize The Element Of Unity . . .

Prevails . . .

Hailing from Ludlow with experience gained in the Mid-West Bruce Stryhas made his debut at Rutland this year. An avid interest in athletics and concern of the student body comprise the majority of his duties. "I'm here to help the school achieve its goals" is his philosophy that has been felt by the students in all aspects of our school lives.

The scene is the cafeteria amid the array of chairs and tables. It is near 2:30 and most people have left. Enter: the students, wearing bellbottomed jeans which have been carefully washed and ripped many times before use (to give that worn-out-been-through-a-hell-of-alot-believe-me look). Their shirts and coats also "groovy."

THE FIRST SAYS:

"... YEAH THAT'S COOL. SHARP! WELL ... " (CAREFULLY PORTRAYING THE ROLE OF JOE COOL WHO IS WITH IT THAT HE HAS SO CAREFULLY PRACTICED) "... ANYWAYS, WATCHA WANNA DO?"

THE SECOND:

"THERE'S A STUDENT COUNCIL MEETING WE ... "

"WHAT'S A STUDENT COUNCIL?"

"NEVERMIND, THERE'S A RED & WHITE MEETING ... "

"WHAT'S A RED AND WHITE?"

"IT'S THAT PAPER WE SPREAD ON THE FLOOR AT MY HOUSE FOR THE CAT."

"WELL WE COULD ALWAYS ... "

"LET'S GET BOMBED ... "

The 1972 Talisman represents the creativity and work of the editors and staff to bring about the yearbook more in line with the students' life style. We have tried to record within reason almost every aspect of life in Rutland High as possible.

Other people with different views were given the opportunity to tell a different story if they desired, and we listened and used those ideas.

Some may find this book controversial or "different". In these times paces change rapidly. The student who buys the Talisman will look back and say, "I was there and this was how it really was."

Quality of photos, copy, and design of the book was achieved through endless hours of painstaking care. If we have fallen short of our goals, it will not be for lack of effort. Some people gave more of themselves and deserve special recognition. Colleen Brennan and Carol Eaton, photo editors, always had the photos ready whenever we needed them. Sally Mac, Business Editor, handled finances, and without Sally there just wouldn't have been a yearbook. We cannot name all the other help that we received, for our list would include the entire Talisman staff.

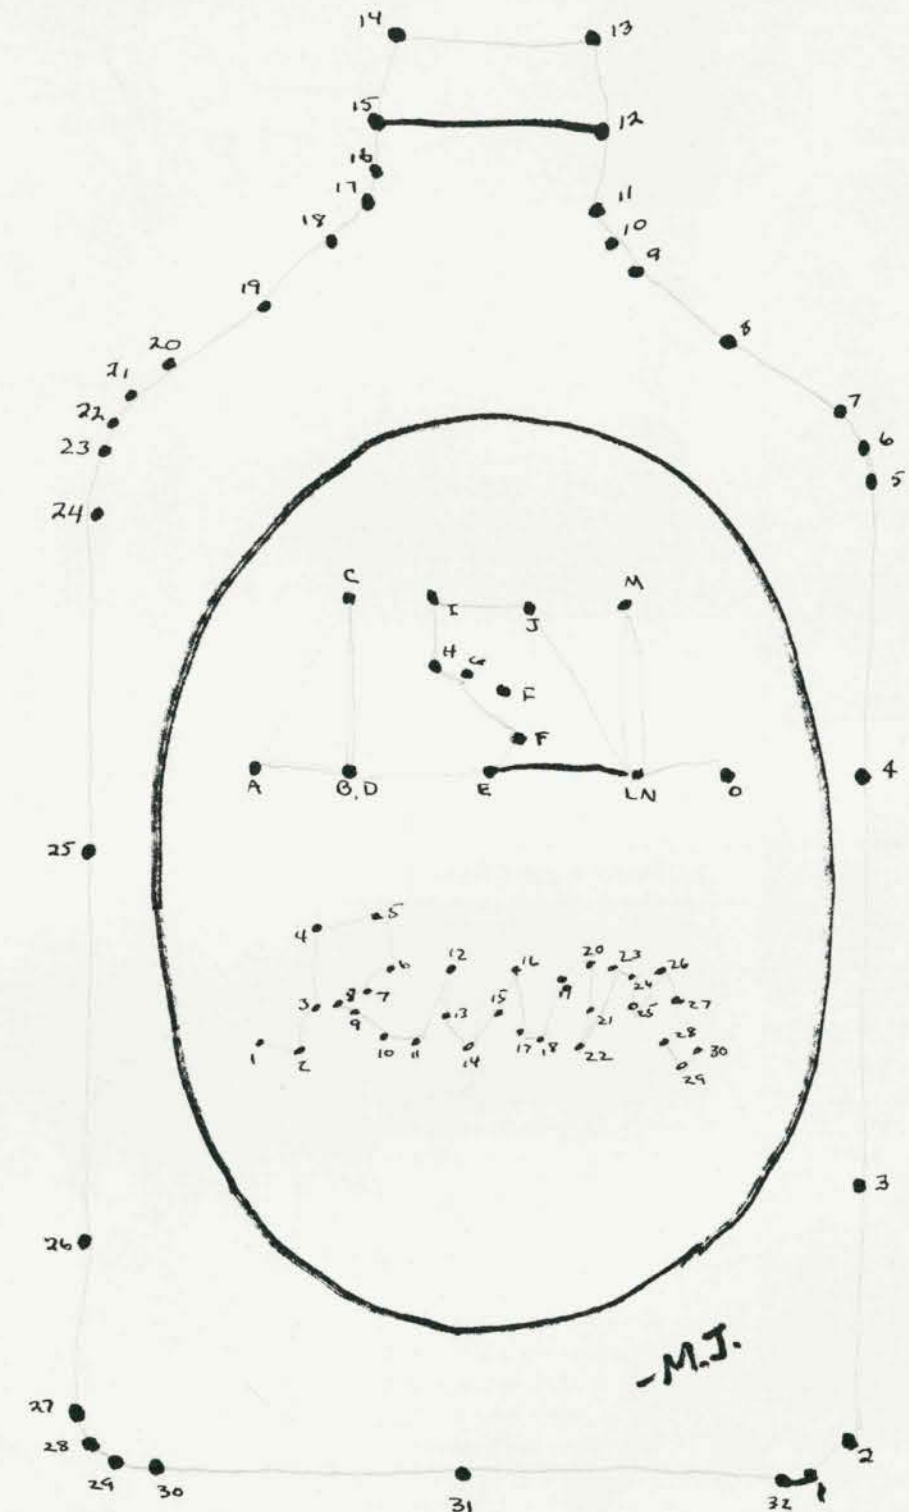

We, the staff of the 72 Talisman, feel that this book is more than just a collection of pictures and names. It contains the work and ideas of the entire staff. It is a portrait of the life and people of Rutland High School. We enjoyed putting together this book tremendously, and hope that you will enjoy reminiscing over it as much as we will.

Supreme Court Ruling Puts Abortion Decision In Hands of Doctors

State's Century-Old Prohibition Knocked Aside as Out-Dated By Science.

By STEVE PATTERSON
(Vermont Press Bureau)

MONTPELIER — The state Supreme Court on Friday knocked a hole in the state's century-old anti-abortion law by saying that a doctor can no longer be prosecuted for performing an abortion. The ruling, in effect, legalizes abortion for one woman whose doctor agrees to perform the operation.

In its milestone decision, the Supreme Court did not tackle the question of the constitutionality of the 12-year-old abortion restriction. Instead, it took the line that medical practice has changed considerably in the past century and a quarter.

The law, the court said, was set up when an operation was a dangerous act fraught with the threat of contamination and infection for the patient. That has now changed.

The old rule said an abortion could be performed only if a woman's life was in danger. But doctors have been forbidden to use their own expert judgment as to when such a situation exists.

We hold that the Legislature having affirmed the right of a woman to abort cannot simultaneously prohibit its safe exercise, said the unanimous decision written by Associate Justice Albert W. Barnes.

As to the constitutionality of the law itself, the high court sent the case back to Chittenden County Court for a hearing on the merits of that issue. Meanwhile, the state Legislature is in session and has a liberalized abortion law in the works. It is due to be debated in the next few weeks.

Pending all that, Vermont is covered by common law, the unwritten custom of legal practice that governs all cases not specifically spelled out by statute or court decision. Common law says an abortion can be performed any time up to the time that the fetus has quickened in the womb, that is, about 12 weeks.

Vermont legal aid filed the case late last year on behalf of a woman 12 weeks pregnant. She was joined in the suit by Dr. Jackson B. Macomber, who said he has right of practicing medicine is intruded by the statute's block to abortions.

The court said the doctor's challenge of constitutionality was not relevant at the present time, since the lower court had not taken evidence as to whether the woman's life would be endangered by the abortion. (See Page 16, Abortion)

MONTPELIER — Melvin A. Peterson, of Burlington, financial vice-president of the University of Vermont, has withdrawn a request for a two-month sabbatical leave.

The reason, according to university officials, was the news of Peterson's request had touched off unwarranted speculation that Peterson was on the verge of leaving the administration.

Dr. Edward C. Andrews, president of UVM, said Peterson had discussed the matter in depth with

W. A. N. TV, Burlington, quoted Dr. Andrews as saying that in view of the demands on the individual area at this time, Mr. Peterson had withdrawn his request for a leave of absence.

Dr. Andrews said he vigorously denied the speculation that arose from talk at the legislative hall in Montpelier, as well as in the campus here, when the news of Peterson's leave request was first broadcast. At that time there was talk about pressure from certain directions including a group of the UVM Board of Trustees, not in favor of Peterson's leave.

The news first broke Wednesday morning and the university confirmed that Peterson had asked for a two-month sabbatical. During the afternoon session, Dr. Andrews said, denied

Bar Unveils Detailed Prison Study

(Vermont Press Bureau)
MONTPELIER — The Vermont Bar Association unveiled an exhaustive study of the state's corrections system Friday.

Following three and a half hours of testimony and a closed session, the commission delayed until Monday taking a formal position on a plan to build a new state prison to replace the current state regional correctional centers and prison system and eliminate the present maximum security facility at Windsor.

Reports by subcommittees of the commission indicated Friday there is strong sentiment among law enforcement officials in the state supporting the regional corrections approach and pointed to a variety of areas where the corrections system has failed.

The commission was

First U.S. 'Fast Breeder' Plant Set for Tennessee

Announcement by AEC
By RICHARD D. LYONS
(Times News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Friday for building the nation's first large fast breeder nuclear power plant, as the first major step in a multibillion dollar program aimed at meeting American energy demands well into the 21st Century.

A fast breeder nuclear reactor produces more fuel than it consumes.

Dr. James R. Schlesinger, the AEC's chairman, said the plant would cost between $400 million and $500 million in federal and private funds, would be located in eastern Tennessee and would supply from 25,000 to 500,000 kilowatts of electric power to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Although American scientists first demonstrated the feasibility of the fast breeder concept 20 years ago, Great Britain and the Soviet Union moved ahead of the United States in breeder research and development.

Soviet scientists announced last week, for example, the completion of their first large breeder of about the same size as the American project. The Soviet Shevchenko Project is due to start generating power shortly, while the largest date of the American plan is 1980.

Schlesinger told a news conference that there were substantial differences in the Soviet and American designs, and that the Tennessee plant would incorporate more safety features than the Soviet model.

He termed the project a "demonstration plant," rather than a full-scale facility because the fast breeder is to be built in the 1980's and 1990's are expected to produce at least twice as much electrical power as the one announced Friday.

Schlesinger noted that the demand for electric power in this country is growing at a very rapid rate, doubling every 10 years.

We are reaching the point that supplies of fossil fuel, coal, gas and oil are recognized to be limited, he said. Furthermore, the availability of low grade uranium is not too substantial, with estimates being that at its provide electrical energy for tens of thousands of years to come.

Fuel for the new plant will consist of a mixture of about 80 per cent ordinary uranium 238 and 20 per cent fissionable plutonium 239. Neutrons released by the plutonium will be absorbed by the uranium 238, converting it in turn into plutonium 239.

After 10 years of operation the atomic core will have produced 120 per cent more plutonium than was initially loaded into it. This plutonium then can be extracted and used to fuel other nuclear power plants.

The importance of the breeder reactor is recognized by one AEC estimate showing that, for example, demand for uranium for nuclear power plants a decade from now will be five times that of today.

Corresponding increases in demand are expected to continue well into the 21st Century. The long range hope is that when uranium stocks start to dwindle, technological breakthroughs will have solved problems posed by controlled thermonuclear fusion, which is viewed theoretically as an almost inexhaustible source of power.

Schlesinger pointed out that in addition to breeding fuel, the plant will operate at much higher temperatures than the type of reactor in common use today, and thus be much more efficient.

Called a liquid metal fast breeder reactor, the Tennessee plant will employ liquid sodium, 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit as a medium for carrying heat from the reactor to steam turbines and generators. Existing nuclear plants and those fired by fossil fuels are wasted.

Liquid sodium will have the additional benefit, the AEC chairman noted, of reducing thermal pollution in the nearby environment of the plant. Conservation groups have complained bitterly in recent years that thermal pollution from power plants, some of which use millions of gallons of water daily as a coolant, has been upsetting the ecology, especially marine life.

The federal government will spend at least $100 million on the new plant, with the TVA

Danish King Dies; Throne Is Daughter's

Frederik IX, Popular Bourgeois Ruler, Was 72; Margrethe, 41, Succeeds Him.

(Times News Service)
COPENHAGEN — King Frederik IX of Denmark died Friday night at the Copenhagen Municipal Hospital. He was 72 years old.

The king, who was taken ill with influenza soon after speaking to the Danish people on television on New Year's Eve, died of pneumonia complicated by a heart attack.

He is succeeded by his eldest daughter, 31-year-old Princess Margrethe, who will be Denmark's first reigning queen.

Queen Ingrid, the King's Swedish-born wife, was at his side when he died. Also present were their three daughters and their husbands — Princess Margrethe and Prince Henrik, Princess Benedikte and Prince Richard of Berleburg, and Queen Anne Marie and exiled King Constantine of Greece and other members of the royal family.

King Frederik will be buried in the 12th-Century Cathedral of Roskilde, the burial place of Danish monarchs for the last 600 years.

Premier Jens Otto Krag Saturday will proclaim Princess Margrethe queen from the balcony of Copenhagen's Christiansburg Palace, the seat of government and Parliament in a simple ceremony that replaced the coronation more than a century ago.

Court officials were unsure Friday night whether the new monarch would be known as Queen Margrethe the First or Second. An earlier Queen Margrethe united Denmark, Norway and Sweden under the Danish crown from 1350 to 1412, but she was never crowned queen.

The Constitution was amended in 1953 to allow Princess Margrethe to succeed her father, who had no male heir.

Her eldest son, Frederik born in 1908, will become crown prince.

By ALDEN WHITMAN
(Times News Service)

Although Frederik IX was a monarch with an impeccable lineage and enjoyed many special privileges that went with his royal status, he was the very model of a bourgeois king, who answered the telephone himself and was handy with the vacuum cleaner. He owned a crown or two, but never wore them. His ceremonial attire was an admiral's uniform, which signified his lifelong interest in the Danish Navy, through whose ranks he had progressed as a young man.

As a sailor, Frederik developed a fondness for tattoos and physical fitness. This combination led him later to utilize the services of a professional bodybuilder, from whom he took a correspondence course that expanded his chest measurement to 46 inches and that of his biceps to 15 inches.

His arms had long been decorated with dragon and lion motifs, and when his chest had reached its ultimate proportions he persuaded a British tattooer to needle a magnificent ruby-red dragon on it.

The episode illustrated the king's relationship to his people and theirs to him. He was a constitutional symbol removed from the commonality by his state functions, but not remote from them in his personality and life style. The 43 million people over whom he reigned made their living and got their food and agricultural products — butter

Prices Back
On Ascent

(Times News Service)
WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices resumed their rise as expected in December, the first full month after the freeze. Labor Department reported Friday.

About half the unusually large increase of eight tenths of one per cent, however, was accounted for by jumps in available and uncontrolled farm prices, such as the price of eggs.

The more meaningful index of industrial commodities increased three tenths of one per cent. This rise of three tenths compares with a small decline during the freeze and an average rise of five tenths of one per cent in the six months before the freeze.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisors, said the increase in the wholesale price index reflected part of the bulge anticipated as a result of the transition from the freeze to a period of more flexible controls and was less than might have been expected.

The only date that could be mentioned as a time when the Soviet Union and the United States have sought to improve relations in preparation for President

Mt. Snow Charged With Violating
Terms of State Pollution Permit

(Vermont Press Bureau)
MONTPELIER — The state Water Resources Board will ask the court Monday to try to stop the Mt. Snow Corp. of Dover from dumping waste into a tributary of the Deerfield River.

The Mt. Snow Corp. is a temporary pollution permit and has been issued a temporary pollution permit to come up with a pollution abatement plan by Jan. 1.

Johnson said Friday that the corporation failed to file such a plan and that it is now in violation of the law.

The Mt. Snow Corp. is dumping about 100,000 gallons of semi-treated waste each day into the North Branch of the Deerfield River.

The Water Resources Board has long contended that the Mt. Snow operation is one of the biggest pollution problems faced in the state.

Last summer the board approved regulations which require a permit be obtained before any waste is dumped into the North Branch of the Deerfield River.

Denning Miller, chairman of the board, refused to admit that the corporation was in violation of the law. However, it was later learned that the Mt. Snow Corp. had been dumping waste into the North Branch of the Deerfield River for some time.

The Water Resources Board called a special meeting Friday to decide whether the issue should be taken to court.

Denning Miller, chairman of the board, refused to admit that the corporation was in violation of the law. However, it was later learned that the Mt. Snow Corp. had been dumping waste into the North Branch of the Deerfield River for some time.

Prison Inmate F
Innocent of Kidna

By BARNY CRUISER
WHITE RIVER JAIL, N. H. Special — A Vermont State Prison inmate was found innocent Friday by a jury of six men and six women who deliberated three hours on the question of whether he kidnapped three guards during a protest movement at the prison Sept. 22.

Philip Michael Creaser, 27, and his attorney were in tears as the jury verdict was announced to the hushed courtroom by Foreman James Abbott. They were speechless for a few moments.

Creaser greets the verdict with a smile. He was found not guilty of kidnapping three guards during a protest movement at the prison Sept. 22.

Communications has been our biggest gap, he said. Maybe we did go about it the wrong way, but everything we did before was just tied away.

With people like Jack Welch and these 12 jurors we can now have a better communications.

Welch got over his emotion soon and told reporters. In my opinion, the first was a true statement.
